BRISTOL HIGH BOWS TO LANGHORNE IN GRID BATTLE HERE

'Bunnies' Suffer Defeat at The Hands of The Visiting Redskins

LANGHORNE WINS, 6 TO 0

Bristol's Playing Was Inferior, Despite Having Most First Downs

By T. M. Juno
Bristol High suffered its third straight setback Saturday afternoon on the home gridiron when Langhorne scored in the last play of the game to beat the localites, 6-0. In a Lower Bucks League match. It was also the first league defeat for Bristol and topped it from first place.

There was no doubt that the Bunnies were inferior to the Langhorne eleven despite the fact that Coach Clarence Bartholomew's boys had the most first downs, 10-6. But Bristol never threatened while the Redskins were close a few times and even had an opportunity to try for a field goal in the second period.

Bristol had a fine start as it made a first down on its first workings with the ball. The Langhorne kickoff return by Knox was to his own 29 and on the first play Flannery quick-kicked to Johnson who ran it back to the Bunnies' 45. Miller got five yards on an end run and Messanelli clicked off two yards at center. A pass, Miller to Messanelli, was completed for a first down on Langhorne's 40. Hajducek lost five yards when he fumbled and on the next play, Miller fumbled and Lukens recovered for Langhorne on the Bristol 47. Cloak hit the line for a quiet of yards and Maag spilled Flannery on a reverse play without a gain. Clark got four yards on an off-tackle play and Flannery followed with a "coffin-corner" kick to Bristol's five-yard line.

On his first attempt at carrying the ball since his illness, Scancella went through the left side of the Redskins' line for 15 yards and a first down. Messanelli hit tackle for three yards. On a fake kick, Hajducek broke loose and ran to his own 38 where he was stopped by Knox. An off-sides penalty cost Bristol five yards. Salvatore broke through and tossed Messanelli for a loss. Hajducek booted out of bounds on Langhorne's 35. The Langhorne backfield was detected in motion and a five-yard penalty imposed. Knox faked a kick and ran but did not gain. Flannery booted to Bristol's 45. Lomma was stopped by Knox after a four yard gain. Scancella gained through the line but the Bunnies were penalized 15 yards for holding. A fumble in the Bristol backfield was recovered by Hammond for Langhorne.

Only last-minute appeals to the voters were left today as the 1942 election campaign came to an end with the ballots to be cast tomorrow in the State's first wartime election since 1918.

Interest in the campaign centered around the State's two major gubernatorial nominees, Adjutant General Edward Martin, Republican, and Auditor General F. Clair Ross, Democrat, both of whom closed their formal campaigns Saturday night.

Martin, however, will make a final campaign speech tonight from Pittsburgh over the radio and will then leave for his home in Washington where he will vote. Ross spent the day at his home in Butler after closing his campaign Saturday in Greene and Washington counties.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT
(Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

The Labor Shortage

Washington, Oct. 31. THE attitude of the President and his manpower commissioner, Mr. Paul McNutt, is that no compulsory labor draft legislation should be enacted until all other methods of meeting the acute labor shortage have been exhausted. This is sound reasoning and the announcement by Mr. McNutt that a "national service" bill will be submitted within two weeks would seem to mean that these other methods have been exhausted and the shortage is so critical as to leave the Administration no alternative.

BUT THE truth is that there is an alternative which they do not mention and there are means of vastly increasing man power from which the Administration shrinks. If these were used the labor shortage would almost immediately disappear and the necessity for another great bureaucratic board with another army of jobholders would cease to exist. Refusal to consider them in the forthcoming bill means an utterly unrealistic approach to the problem—a deliberate refusal to adopt the clear, logical and effective steps for its solution.

THERE IS NO mystery as to what these are. Every thoughtful person knows them. First—and chief—there is the lengthening of the basic working week from forty to forty-eight hours. This, at once, would increase the available labor supply, at existing wages, twenty per cent. A proposal to do this has recently been made by Representative Ramspeck, of Georgia, who is a real friend of labor. If he were given White House support, the shortage could be wiped out almost overnight. It would be equivalent to increasing the available labor supply one fifth. The average

TO THE VOTERS OF BUCKS COUNTY:

Cards are being circulated among and statements are being made to the voters of Bucks County indicating that a voter can vote a straight Party ticket and still vote for an individual candidate of an opposite Party. This is deceptive and misleading, as the only straight ticket for all of the candidates of a Party is an "X" marked in the Party square opposite the Party of your choice. Any other marking is not a straight Party ticket.

STOP POLITICAL TRICKERY IN BUCKS COUNTY

The people of Bucks County, like every other community, are absorbed in the war. We are all making our contributions in our own particular way so that the conflict may be ended successfully in the shortest space of time and the ideals for which the great sacrifice is being made shall be preserved to us and future generations of Americans.

Successful commanders of fighting forces afloat and ashore, while keeping their eyes upon the enemy, neglect no single detail that may affect the result. Each individual voter, therefore, with the thoroughness of the responsible commander, should now remember that while today he or she may buy a bond or make a cartridge, or help to build an airplane or a tank, tomorrow there is a distinct duty to perform in voting.

The opportunity comes but once every two years to select those who will represent us at Washington and at Harrisburg for varying periods of time. All of them will be concerned directly in shaping the prosecution of the war both at Washington and at Harrisburg.

Every such campaign somewhere seems to develop an unusual situation and now we find it in our home community in the shape of an attempted stab in the back of our sitting State Senator Howard I. James. This "behind the back attack" was conceived and kept well hidden until after the results of the Primary Campaign became known when it was learned that the opposition had named an inconspicuous man without experience or equipment. His selection can only be explained by the fact that he bore the same name as the sitting Senator.

This is not the first time that this "trick" has been tried. Wherever it has come before the courts, as it has in numerous situations, it has been squelched as being unfair and out of harmony with our American doctrine of fair play in all things. To further emphasize the underhand methods resorted to it should be understood that this opposing candidate has nothing to recommend him except some reflection of the approval that has attached to the name of James. The Senator's long and faithful service to his community, to his fellow citizens both at home and at Harrisburg, make him an outstanding citizen. The other James hopes the voters will be confused by this similarity of names and accidentally vote for him instead of giving credit where credit is due by voting for the re-election of State Senator Howard I. James.

A resident of Doylestown, the other James temporarily took up residence in Bristol and plodded from house to house soliciting personal votes for election as State Senator. It is not surprising, therefore, that a number of Senator James' fellow citizens in the southern part of the County have joined in signing an informative letter setting forth this situation. They have summarized the situation in a few words, as follows:

"We would call your attention to the fact this individual is without public experience of any character and has never held a public office. Nothing in his business experience would justify him asking Republicans to support him for the highly important office of State Senator at a time when every public consideration requires Republicans

FIRST-AID STATION IS FULLY EQUIPPED

Supplies and Equipment Purchased With Funds Donated By Residents

1ST PREC., 1ST WARD

The first precinct of the first ward is "set" for any emergency.

An emergency first aid station, located on the first floor of the station of Bristol Fire Co., No. 1, is fully equipped to care for casualties in case of any disaster.

The plan originated in the minds of Mrs. Richard Buma and Mrs. Elwood Bilger, and the past few weeks have been busy ones for these two women and several other residents of the first precinct of the first ward.

Members of Bristol Fire Co., No. 1, aided, these men also making a fine dressing table.

In addition to the dressing table there are seven cots, fully equipped with linens and blankets.

The large room, which is equipped for instant "black-out" as is the entire building, also contains work tables, a stretcher, chairs, night tables, closets for supplies, etc.

Bristol borough council's donation is a surgical supply chest. One such chest is made possible for each ward, money being appropriated by borough council.

Mrs. Buma and Mrs. Bilger inaugurated their plan by collecting funds and equipment from residents of the area embraced. With the money there were purchased bed linens, cots, towels, wash-cloths, soap, medicines, ice bags, heating pads, bandages, and various utensils.

Black draperies were made by the group, and white curtains are so arranged in the first aid room that privacy will be afforded. Folding screens are in place; as are likewise lanterns, both the oil and electric type.

Whenever the sirens sound in tests for aid raids nurses and first aid workers immediately respond by taking their places at the first aid station. A doctor has also been assigned to duty there. Should a real emergency occur the group is ready to go into action.

On two evenings last week, when the station was open for inspection a number of visitors were shown the equipment.

A kitchen has been fitted up, where hot beverages, foods, stimulants, etc., or even food for any who might be housed there for a time, can be prepared. Food has also been stored for use when needed.

SERMON OF HOPE GIVEN AT DEDICATION OF FLAG

Very Rev. Fr. Hoeger Gives Message at Holy Ghost College Service

HONOR TWENTY PRIESTS

EDDINGTON, Nov. 2—A sermon based upon a text from the Psalms "In Thee O Lord have I hoped, I shall never be confounded," delivered by the Very Rev. Frederick T. Hoeger, C. S. Spr., rector, at Holy Ghost Missionary College, here, yesterday afternoon, preceded the unfurling and blessing of a service flag in the seminary quadrangle. Twenty priest alumni and former members of the faculty were honored at the blessing of the flag in the Chapel of the Seven Gifts.

The Rev. Fr. Hoeger, in his message, said in part: "Unless we can keep alive a faith in a Supreme Being who decides the men, society and the nations, we shall never have anything approaching an abiding peace. Those who make their patriotism go beyond the raising of flags, and make it an appeal to the God of nations are doing a patriotic act that is doubly patriotic, because it is keeping alive the faith in a Supreme Power upon whose laws ultimately depend the decision of what is right and just."

"Might will be the standard over right, unless we acknowledge the higher law that decides and co-relates all the rights of mankind, whether they be family, social, national or international rights."

"Therefore let us raise our service flag with a prayer that God may bring back our alumni chaplains to perpetrate by their preaching the law of God the victory which we will surely gain, for we have hoped in the Lord and we will not be confounded."

The 20 stars were arranged on the service flag in the form of a cross, a gold star in the center being for Rev. Fr. William Duffy, C. S. Sp., who died in April. A memorial All Souls service for the deceased priest was held in the cemetery, the presiding priest, the Rev. Fr. Leo J. Kettl, C. S. Sp., director of the seminary, being in charge. The ceremonies closed with benediction in the chapel.

U. S. Submarines Sink Seven "Jap" Ships

Washington—Augmenting heavy aerial blows against Japanese sea power in the Solomons area, the Navy announced today that U. S. submarines operating in Far Eastern waters have sunk seven Nipponese supply ships and damaged 2 more vessels, including one converted carrier and one destroyer.

New attacks boosted to more than 40 the number of enemy ships of all types announced as sunk and damaged during the past week in which the last Japanese attempts to recapture Guadalcanal was thwarted.

The submarine action indirectly aided American Army and Navy forces in the Solomons by whittling down still further Japanese sea power.

In the latest forays, U. S. submarines sank 2 large tankers, one large and two medium size cargo vessels and two small cargo vessels. In addition, one converted carrier was damaged and set on fire, and one destroyer and medium size tanker hit.

In action around the Solomons, Army, Navy, and Marine Corps airmen from the Australian and Guadalcanal area evenly divided 30 Nipponese ships reported sunk and damaged during the past week. The submarine action raised to 133 the number of Nipponese ships sunk and damaged by American submarines alone since the outbreak of the Pacific conflict. These included 86 sunk, 20 probably sunk and 27 damaged.

New Attack in Kowloon Harbor

Chongking—A heavy new attack by American bombing and fighting planes on Japanese installations in Kowloon Harbor of Hong Kong was announced officially today.

The American planes strafed and dive-bombed shipping and military points, scoring a number of direct hits. One freighter was left burning and near misses were scored against two others.

REBUILDING CITIES

One of the most fascinating fields of post-war planning belongs to the architects of the world. It falls to the lot of Sir Edward Lutyens and Sir Charles Bressey, commissioned by the Royal Academy, to do for the great city of London what countless architects must do for countless other cities after the war has been won.

For the first time in years Saint Paul's Cathedral in London stands alone, as Wren saw it, its splendor untarnished by the crowding buildings which have been swept away by fire and explosion. Other sections of London, notably, the East End which bore the brunt of early bombings, will benefit by the war. Parks and playgrounds will replace ancient slums.

The architects apparently are holding firm against the temptation to revive medieval London. Although they will not copy New York with its skyscrapers, and streamlined architecture, they hold in common with builders here the theory that space, fresh air and sunshine are healthful as well as beautiful. And they are planning to provide for London what all prewar cities lacked, adequate transportation facilities.

Major operations, says the report from London, are planned for the Charing Cross area and Piccadilly Circus, designed to speed the movement of traffic. The greatest single contribution that the new plan makes to London as a whole is a ring of belt highway linking important points of the city. Within the ring all rail lines would be electrified and under ground.

Only the high points of the plan have been made public here. To the planners come the great chance for which other architects have longed—the chance to rebuild London, to wipe out the slums, to protect the beauty of ancient buildings, to preserve the best and destroy the worst of an ancient city.

May the time come soon when their plans, now on paper, will be seen in stone and steel, and when other great population centers—Rotterdam, Warsaw, Belgrade, Stalingrad—will rise from their ashes and ruins to become again the pride of their people.

What this country needs, in the opinion of farmers, is a new Burbank who can develop species of plant life that are self-harvesting.

If, as predicted, flying autos make their appearance after the war, will people sigh for the good old days of war?

Of all the bait ever put out by Congressmen, tax rebate is the most open to suspicion.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol Jan. 13, 1881. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

The ice on the Delaware is 14 inches thick.

Joseph Sherman has invented a combination lounge and pool table.

A race on the river between Bristol and Burlington ice boats was announced to take place today.

The work on Grundy Bros. & Company's extension to their worsted mill is progressing.

A horse and sleigh is used to convey passengers across the river between Burlington and Bristol.

Messrs. George S. Stone & Son, plumbers, have rented the building on Danforth street, formerly occupied as a machine shop by E. L. Banes & Brother. With their enlarged facilities they will be in a better position to accommodate the public than ever before.

The ordinance committee of council, which has in charge the framing of an ordinance relating to the regulation of chimney flues, will probably report in favor of designating some person to act as fire inspector for the borough, to look after defective chimneys and similar matters.

J. P. Hutchinson, as agent, has sold the late Peter Williamson's farm of 171 acres, in Falls Township, to William H. Hibbs, of Bristol township, on private terms.

The borough council held its regular meeting on Monday evening, all the members being present except Messrs. Harkins and Dougherty.

William Lunderbough, collector of borough tax having returned to council a list of delinquent taxpayers from whom he could not collect the tax asked to be released from further responsibility in the matter. The Burgess was instructed to issue warrants for the arrest of those who would not pay the tax, and the list was handed over to the constable to attend to. The sum of $50 was appropriated to pay the expenses of prosecuting those who refuse to pay the tax after proper notification to do so.

Upon motion the street committee was authorized to have the sidewalk along the Friends' burying-ground kept clear of snow during this winter, in return or as an acknowledgment to the Friends for permitting the borough to use their burying ground.

The "Farm and Dairy," a new monthly paper, devoted to agricultural and dairy interests, is issued from the office of the Delaware Valley Advance.

Complaint was made at council meeting, on Monday evening, that ashes are thrown in the streets, and the Burgess was instructed to see that the ordinance relating to the matter is enforced. Why should not the borough employ somebody to collect the ashes and cart them away? In many cases property holders and tenants have no place to dispose of ashes and other refuse.

An attempt was made to rob the shoe store of Joseph Buick, on Bath street, early last Friday morning. The thief was shot at by Mr. Buick, but we have not heard that the bullet was injured.

Paxson Booz, of Bristol, was seriously injured last week by a fall from the cars. He is an employee of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The recommendation of the coroner's jury in the late railroad case does not seem to have impressed the railroad company very forcibly. There are no indications that the recommendations are to be acted upon.

GIRL IN THE GREEN COAT

by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

I stood there, thinking about what Chris had said. I could see that coat in Jan's studio. I could see it trailing over to the piano, past the body on the floor. I picked up the hem. It was black with the oily dirt that comes off the floors of none too clean old buildings.

I had never worn that housecoat out of my clean, carpeted studio in my life! But somebody had been dragging it through the dirty halls, not Emily, for it didn't drag on her feet, somebody else. Somebody, somebody slim and short like me, had taken my coat, and then hid it in Emily's closet.

I opened my hand and let the green silk drop back to the floor. I wiped the cold, clammy perspiration off my forehead, but I could feel it damp and sticky, like blood, all over my body. I left the tell-tale coat there on the floor.

If I don't tell somebody I'll burst. I thought. But whom could I tell? Unless I also told Chris' story, it wouldn't mean a thing. I wanted to tell Chris, but I was afraid. And suppose somebody found my housecoat, hidden under the smocks in Emily's closet? I had the key to her room, anyone would think I had planted it there, to get rid of it.

I hadn't, but who had?

There wasn't a woman in the building small enough to wear a size 11 except Mrs. Utz and Emily, and they couldn't, because they were too tall. Mrs. Utz is at least two inches taller than I, and Emily, slim as a reed, is a good five feet seven, to my five feet three.

I ought to go back and look at it again. Maybe there were blood stains on it. But if there were I wouldn't have any choice, I'd have to tell and if I did what kind of a spot would I be? Chris at 0 thought it was a little. He pretended he didn't, but he really did.

Do I walk in my sleep? No, I wouldn't know it if I did, for the sleep through everything. Would I know it if I did? Of course, I'd know it. I thought, feeling far from convinced.

I threw my pink bed-jacket and a few little trinkets into an overnight bag, and called a taxi. I made up my mind I'd tell Emily and I'd get into her room if it took a leg.

It was a little after five when I arrived at the hospital and the corridors were full of those rubber-tired, tiered wagons they use to bring the trays from the kitchens. Bus boys and nurses were hurrying back and forth in the corridors. No one paid any attention to me.

I was just about to duck into Emily's door without having been noticed, when it opened, and a nurse came out with a basin and some towels.

"I'm sorry, no visitors. Didn't they tell you at the office?"

She was a new nurse. I hadn't seen her before, and she didn't know that I was a reporter.

I handed her my little bag. "These are the things she sent for. I'm Mary. Doesn't she want to see me?" She hesitated. "If they don't let me see her now, maybe I'll NEVER see her!" I said.

"Don't stay too long, and call me if you notice any change," she said. She looked at me strangely, and I knew what she meant. She meant that they had given up, and a visitor more or less didn't matter.

Emily did not seem surprised to see me. "I thought you were never coming," she said. She did not look very ill. She was propped up on pillows, and she smiled naturally, almost gaily. Her hair looked very black, spread out on the pillow. She looked smaller, too. She looked like a French doll I had when I was a child, a doll whose eyes were too big for her face, whose little nose and mouth were pinched.

I made the usual inane remarks about how well she looked, and in a way I meant them. She couldn't be as ill as the nurse implied, and still be propped up on pillows, smiling at me!

Her smile faded. "Mary, Pete's dead, and I'm so worried. I'm sure they're saying he's the murderer. They won't let me see the papers. He left me all that money, and he'd be alive and well today, and happy, if it hadn't been for me. Mary, he didn't do any harm, he didn't kill anybody. It was just because he came to see me. I've told them and told them, and they think I'm lying. He worked so hard all his life, and I never had anything, really. And then this happened to him, and it's so cruel, so unfair."

"Don't!" I said, "don't feel so badly. And if you cry they'll make me leave. It's bad for you and me."

"Don't you know I'm going to die? Didn't they tell you? I thought that was why they let you come. They're nice to me, they let me have anything I want now. They don't know I know."

"You mustn't think things like that. I'm—I'm sure you're going to get well. I brought you a bed-jacket, I said foolishly. And oh, Emily, I've got to ask you, it's about my green housecoat. I found it on the floor of your closet, and I—"

I Sissy as usual, I felt the tears dropping, spilling off my face onto my lap. I couldn't go on with it.

She looked at me gently, compassionately, as if it were I who was ill.

"I thought you guessed. I was almost sure you did."

"Guessed what?" I asked hoarsely.

"I was going to tell you, as soon as I was sure I . . . wouldn't get well. I want to tell it. I'm the only one who knows."

"Knows what?" I had to ask, but I knew and I didn't want her to say it. I wanted to get out of there before I knew any more, before I'd have to do something about it.

"Knows who killed Gil Castle."

"Somebody else does too. I mean a little. Chris Hall—the newspaper man, you remember him—was waiting for Jan—in Jan's bedroom—"

"I'd done it over. I'd told what I had to right to tell. I plunged on miserably, unable to stop now that

BENSALEM BOWS TO MORRISVILLE IN SCHOOL GRID BATTLE

Bulldogs Keep Up Their Streak of Bowling Over all Opposition

FINAL SCORE IS 19 TO 0

Owls Came Nearest to Scoring In The Final Quarter

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Nov. 2.—In a battle of passes, the Morrisville Bulldogs continued its bowling over of Lower Bucks County opponents by trimming the Bensalem eleven, 19-0, in a game which saw the Owls hardly threaten to score at all.

In fact, the closest the Owls came to scoring was in the final quarter of the game when three completed passes for first downs brought the ball to within twenty yards of the Morrisville goal but then an interception spoiled it all.

The boys of Johnny Hoffman scored a pair of touchdowns in the second quarter and scored its final one with but a few seconds remaining to be played. All touchdowns were the result of forward passes.

Both of the touchdowns in the second period were hurled by the speedy Matt Phillips, backfield ace of the Bulldogs. Phillips, stopped on the ground work, heaved the first pass to Bill Marsh and tossed the second to Ed Burns. Both were good for 15 yards and touchdowns. On the second touchdown, the extra point was converted when Bill Marsh cracked through the line on a fake kick.

Marsh's 20 yard pass on practically the last play of the game resulted in the third six-pointer. Bob Neeld was on the receiving end. Marsh's try for the extra point was a failure.

The victory put the Morrisville team in a deadlock with Langhorne for first place in the Lower Bucks County League. Both have won a game with Bristol and Bensalem taking the defeats. Bristol also has a league victory. Morrisville meets Langhorne next Saturday.

STOP POLITICAL TRICKERY IN BUCKS COUNTY

to support for public office men of experience, intellectual courage and proven ability in the field of public work to which they aspire."

We would be remiss if we did not join in the effort by Senator James' neighbors to protect him against this unfair act of his opponent.

The Constitution of Pennsylvania provides that the Upper House of the General Assembly shall be composed of fifty members chosen by the electors, one from each of the districts, to serve for a period of four years. That body is rich in tradition and has included in its membership men truly representative of the two opposing parties in this Commonwealth. From our knowledge of those who have graced its deliberations, we cannot but believe that this other James would feel very much out of place in that body.

Howard I. James is about to conclude his first four year term and is now chairman of the Senate Committee on Executive Nominations which passes upon the worth, character and availability of every appointee to a major State office. He has labored diligently in Senate Committees and by votes on the floor of the Senate to further the constructive program of legislation promised to the people by the Republican Party. And these promises were kept. As his neighbors so well said—

"There is hardly any patriotic or worthwhile enterprise in the life of the lower end of Bucks County in the past forty years in which he has not been called upon to take an active part."

It is inconceivable that Bucks County would reject its native son and one who has labored so long and diligently in the furtherance of its every interest for one who has neither experience, capacity nor a record of achievement. To avoid the confusion which his opponent hopes to create by asking for personal votes, the surest way for every voter to vote for Senator James and reject trickery, is by voting the straight Republican ticket tomorrow.

Large Crowd Attends Dedication of Shrine

base of the statue an honor roll contains the names of the 89 young women and young men of the parish who are serving their country in the armed forces. For the auspicious occasion of the dedication numerous bouquets of cut flowers decorated the interior of the shrine. An electrically-lighted sign near the sidewalk bears the name "Our Lady of Grace Memorial Shrine."

The Rev. Father James Cavanaugh of Our Lady of Grace parish, was in charge of the ceremony, and called upon Msgr. John J. Mellon to bless the shrine; the Rev. Fr. Thomas J. Hurton to bless the colors and the service flag; and the Rev. Fr. Joseph A. M. Quigley, J. C. D., M. A., N. S., who delivered the dedication address.

The program of the day commenced with a procession of members of the clergy, sisterhood, pupils of Our Lady of Grace parochial school, parishioners and friends, from the rectory, around the block which embraces the church property, and thence to the shrine. The group was headed by the Bensalem Township high school band. The program included: band selections; blessing of the shrine; "Ave Maria," sung by Frank Sutton; blessing of the two flags, the Rev. Fr. Hurton; band selections; dedication address, the Rev. Quigley; number by children's choir; solemn benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament; and group singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner." The Rev. Fr. R. P. Phelan, of Our Lady of Grace Church, then presented to parents of those in service prayer books to be forwarded to those in training or on the battle-fronts.

In the dedication address, the Rev. Fr. Quigley said: "We have come here today in the bitter days of war to dedicate to the Mother of God under the title of Our Lady of Grace, this shrine, where men may consecrate to the Blessed Lady and their God the flower of their knighthood; and where others may find solace and consolation in their sorrows."

The priest reminded how the Blessed Mary in becoming the mother of God became a real co-worker with God in the redemption of mankind. "Mary had the choicest of relations with all persons of the Divine Trinity," he continued. "She was the daughter of God the Father; the mother of God, the Son; and the well-beloved spouse of God, the Holy Ghost. . . . Mary, in becoming the mother of Christ also became the mother of men. Mary was the holiest saint who ever lived on earth. Her will was always within the will of God. . . . And the proof of Mary's lowliness was shown when she said she would be the handmaiden of God, as the angel informed her she was to be the mother of God.

"It is fitting that we dedicate this shrine to Mary, in honor of the young women and young men who are going out to defend their country, the country which is dedicated to Mary. We beseech Our Lady of Grace to give our young women and young men protection and the grace of final perseverance. We know she will bring peace and victory to our beloved country. If Mary is with us, Jesus is also with us. And if He is with us who can be against us?"

work week in Great Britain is fifty-six hours. Here, counting overtime, it still is under forty-three. In face of that comparison, it is certainly difficult to defend the wartime continuation of the forty-hour week.

IF, IN addition to lengthening its week to forty-eight hours, labor, during the war, would give up the rules and practices which create non-essential jobs and force industries to carry useless men, who not only do not work themselves but who really restrict the efficient use of other men and machines — if these practices could be prohibited, production would leap and the whole labor shortage situation be completely changed. With many thousands of men willing and eager to work longer; with the Government about to lower the draft age to 18; with Mr. McNutt about to present a compulsory national service bill, it does seem that we can no longer afford to let these labor luxuries continue solely through fear of the professional labor politicians.

IT IS clear that these are not going to relinquish voluntarily their forty-hour week or anything else. They prate about their sacrifices but make none. The suggestion that any of their "social gains" should be suspended while the war lasts — and that is all that is suggested — evokes such howls from the labor lobbyists that all the rabbit politicians run for cover. Yet, the continuation during the war of these crippling laws and rules has greatly retarded our war production and vastly increased its cost. There is no possible denial of that.

RATHER THAN grapple with this reality, we find the Administration about to launch a compulsory national service law, under which the whole population would be regimented in a way never dreamed of before. From the advance publicity on the subject it is clear that there is only the cloudiest idea of how so comprehensive and drastic a law is to be administered, and that those charged with its sponsorship are, themselves, somewhat afraid of it — as well they may be. What the nation has cause to fear is the creation of another great governmental agency, headed by a politician, with power but without capacity, who will add thousands more civilians to the swollen Federal pay rolls, and produce little beyond confusion.

OF THE actuality of the labor shortage there is no doubt. Nor is there any doubt that if the Administration fails — as it almost certainly will — to do either of the two things it should do to solve the problem — to wit, first, change the forty-hour week to forty-eight hours — and, second, eliminate the vast number of useless men among the 2,600,000 civilian employees now on the Government pay rolls — if it fails to do these things, then some such law as Mr. McNutt is drafting becomes essential. But, an effort to get action along the lines urged by Mr. Ramspeck, believed in by plenty of his colleagues and desired, as the polls show, by a large majority of the people, should be made first. If that cannot be done, Congress, at least, can insist upon a national service law that will be soundly conceived and non-politically administered. This seems the sort of fight to which, now he has made his "report to the people" on his foreign travels, Mr. Willkie might well devote himself.

Bristol was a failure on a pass and on the second attempt Knox intercepted for Langhorne. Knox was knocked out of bounds by Miller on the 10 yard stripe. A pass failed and Cloak missed a field goal when his place-kick was properly placed but too low. Scancelli gained eight yards on a tackle play as the half ended.

At the start of the second half, Cloak kicked to Cordisco who ran it back to his own 25. Messanelli gained five yards around left end and Scancelli made it a first down through the line. A pass was completed with Scancelli on the receiving end but it wasn't a gain. Cordisco pounded center for eight yards. Scancelli scored another first down on Langhorne's 40. Scancelli gained two yards and two passes were incomplete as Langhorne on the Bunnies' 36. A Bristol 28. Spadafore broke through and tossed Knox for a loss. Cloak and Flannery could not gain and Flannery punted to Messanelli on Bristol's 39.

A misplay in the Bristol backfield caused a 10 yards loss. Miller made seven yards on a line play but fumbled and Hammond recovered for Langhorne on the Bunnies' 36. A Bristol back intercepted a pass. Scancelli ripped through the line for 15 yards. Miller lost five yards on a fumble. Scancelli gained five yards on an off-tackle thrust. Flannery kicked to the Bristol 45 but the play was taken over because a Cardinal and Gray player was caught clipping from the rear. Bristol took a 15 yards penalty and Langhorne given a 1st down. YOU ARE ON THE FIRING LINE NOVEMBER 3RD. THEN IS THE TIME TO CHOOSE YOUR REPRESENTATIVES AT WASHINGTON AND HARRISBURG PUT YOUR TRUST IN REPUBLICANISM AND VOTE STRAIGHT REPUBLICAN ON TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 3RD.

DECIDING OUR GOVERNMENTAL POLICIES BY VOTING IS ONE OF THE CHERISHED GUARANTEES UNDER OUR CONSTITUTION. THE PRESENT WAR IS BEING WAGED PRIMARILY TO SAFEGUARD FOR US THE CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS ALREADY POSSESSED. NEVER IN THE LIFE OF OUR REPUBLIC WAS THE OUTCOME OF AN ELECTION MORE IMPORTANT TO EVERY CITIZEN, PARTICULARLY TO THE BOYS IN UNIFORM. THEY ARE FIGHTING THE WORLD BATTLE 365 DAYS OF THE YEAR. IS IT TOO MUCH TO ASK THAT YOU GIVE ONE DAY ON THE HOME FRONT?

The issues to be settled on November 3rd next will vitally affect you and yours far into the future. Those who are to represent you in Washington and at Harrisburg should be carefully selected. You will vote to elect one Congressman-at-Large from Pennsylvania and one Congressman locally. These two men for two years will help determine the conduct of the war and what burdens will be laid upon you in taxation and service to make the war effort successful.

In Bucks County, you will elect your representative to the State Senate of Pennsylvania, one of the fifty members of that body, and two of the Representatives in the lower house of the General Assembly. These two bodies, with the Chief Executive of the Commonwealth, will determine what laws shall be placed upon the Statute books of Pennsylvania in the next two years, and what the State's contribution shall be to the war effort in this the greatest industrial state in the Union.

The Republican Party is pledged, and so are its candidates, to an all-out support of the war effort both at Washington and Harrisburg. They are pledged to decent, clean government and economical expenditures for civilian purposes so that the greatest amount possible may be available for war.

The most important office to be filled is that of Governor, who, for the next four years will lead this Commonwealth. Almost every problem that will confront him will be related to the war. The Republican Party, cognizant of the tremendous responsibilities that will confront him, has selected General Edward Martin. He will bring to that office forty-four years training in military affairs including participation in the Spanish American War, the Mexican incident and the leadership of troops on the front line in France in World War I, where he was gassed, twice wounded and twice decorated with the Distinguished Service Cross. He is equally conversant with our civilian problems having served as Auditor General and State Treasurer of Pennsylvania to which offices he was elected as the Republican candidate with majorities in each instance of a few thousand votes less than a million.

The PHILADELPHIA INQUIRER editorially on Sunday, October 18, summarized the campaign in these words:

"Pennsylvania has an opportunity of placing in the Governor's office precisely the right man at precisely the right time. To fit Pennsylvania's arsenal tightly and concretely into the structure of America at war we need General Martin as Governor."
